Little Ninja and the Dark Night

A bedtime story about finding friends in the dark

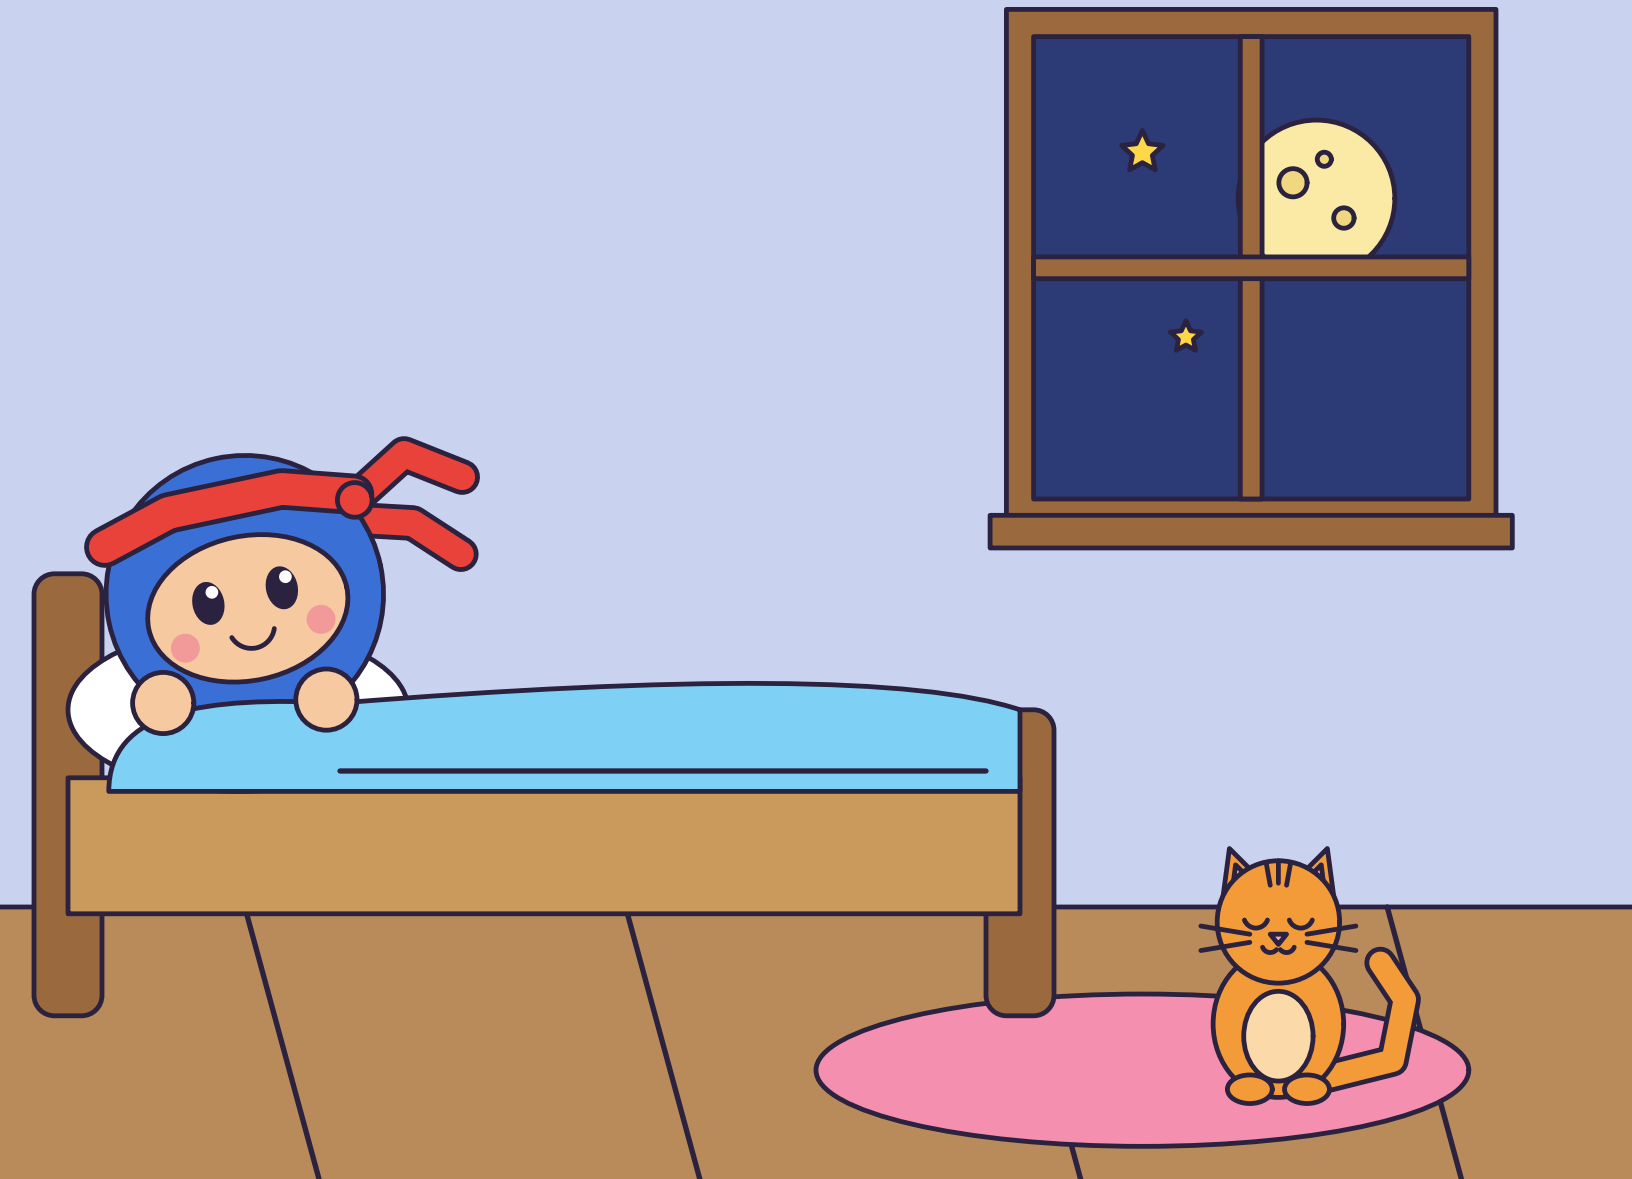

Little Ninja and the Dark Night

For little ninjas who are learning to love the night

When the sun went down, it was time for bed. Kai snuggled under the blanket. But Kai could not sleep.

The room was very dark. “Creak!” went the floor. “Whoosh!” went the wind. Kai peeked out from the covers.
Whoosh!
Creak!

On the wall was a BIG shadow with pointy ears! “Who… who is there?” Kai whispered.

“Meow!” It was only Pip, sitting by the lamp! Kai laughed and laughed. “Silly Pip!”

“Tap, tap, tap.” Sensei Owl was at the window. “Come, little ninja. Let’s go and meet the night.”
Tap, tap!

Outside, the moon was big and round. “The moon is a night-light for the whole world,” said Sensei Owl.

“Ribbit! Ribbit!” The frogs were singing a night song by the pond. Kai listened very quietly.

Tiny lights danced in the grass. “Fireflies!” said Kai. “They look like little stars!”

Kai and Sensei Owl counted the stars. One, two, three... so many stars!

“The dark is not scary,” said Kai.
“The dark is full of friends!”

Back in bed, Kai gave a big ninja yawn. Goodnight, moon. Goodnight, stars. Goodnight, little ninja.

Night Ninja Tricks

For when the dark feels a little scary

 Take a big ninja breath.

 Hug your favorite toy.

 Look for the moon.

 Listen for night sounds.

 Say: “The dark is full of friends!”

Sweet dreams, little ninja!
